Troubleshooting

- If a power light does not come on, make sure the PLA is turned on.
- If an Ethernet light does not come on, please check the Ethernet cable.
- If the HomePlug light does not turn on, this means there is no communications between PLA devices. This can be due to other PLA devices not being plugged in to electrical outlets yet, PLA device is possibly in low power mode or there is an issue on the power circuit. Make sure that the PLAs are on the same power circuit. Test by connecting PLAs into nearby outlets. Make sure that you do not have a power meter between them.
- To minimize interference, move PLAs away from high powered electrical devices such as refrigerators, air-conditioners, microwave ovens, etc.
- When securing the Powerline network, make sure not to press the ENCRYPT buttons on both PLAs for more than 3 seconds. If the process fails, press the said buttons on both PLAs over 10 seconds to disconnect, then try to reconnect again.
- See the User's Guide for more troubleshooting tips.
